Explains Stand on AFL's $4000 a Year Proposal.

By JOHN T. FLYNN

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Number of letters of protest have come to me in reference to a stand taken on the American Federation of Labor's proposed goal very American family.

The protests take the form of lashing out against anyone who thinks a laborer should not try to improve his condition or anyone who opposes labor's efforts to organize to do that. Why, they ask, should not a workman try to earn $4000 a year.

Of course there is no reason why a workman should not want to earn $4000 a year and every reason why he should organize in a union to advance the interests of himself and his fellow workers. No one is more for that than I am.

What I called attention to was the proclaimed goal of the A. F. of L. to establish an income of $4000 a year for every American family. And I did so not because I would not like see all American families enjoy such good fortune but because American workers who have so many serious and important objectives to achieve are merely diverted from them by these futile objectives.

But there is another reason for calling attention to it. I did so because I thought this announced plan characteristic of what I consider a weakness of the A. F. of L. That weakness is found in the fact that the A. F. of L., according to my views, is not interested in every American family, but only in the small group of families which belong to the A. F. of L. The only way to get $4000 for American workers now is at the expense of other American workers.

Get Goal Straight

At present three out of every four American workers earn less than $2500 and over a third of the workers earn less than $1000. The great goal of labor now should be to meet the grave and difficult problem of raising the wages of these forgotten groups who earn less than $1000 a year—and this means, remember, in many cases as low as $500 a year. The only way this can be done is by organizing all the workers.

Laws like workmen's compensation, old age pensions, unemployment insurance and minimum wage laws are made for the protection of the great unorganized groups more than any others. But if we have not had laws like these for years, I believe it was partly because the A. F. of L. was not interested in the low wage workers.

A Look at Record

Samuel Gompers opposed even workmen's compensation for years. Years ago the A. F. of L. fought health insurance along with Civic Federation and the insurance companies. The A. F. of L. opposed unemployment insurance until 1932. It fought for years the minimum wage law and it opposed old age pensions at one time.

Dr. Futrell said he understood the school had until June, 1939, to meet requirements of the A. M. A. for permanent restoration of approved rating.

The governor said he had explained to the council that the Arkansas legislature which meets in January, would be asked to correct conditions with an increased appropriation. The council indicated, Governor Bailey said, that an increase from $70,000 to $100,000 annually would be enough to provide hospital and clinical facilities which the council had requested.

Others who appeared before the committee were Dr. John C. Futrell, president of the university, Dr. Frank Vinsonhale, dean of the Medical School; Dr. F. A. Corn, Will Steel, and Brooks Shult, trustees of the university.

Arkansas Loses Back-Tax Suit Against Midland Rail Company

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States Supreme Court ruled Monday that the National Labor Board has supervision over a company operating in only one state but which sells products to other concerns engaged in interstate commerce.

This decision, applying specifically to the Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., gave broad power, attorneys said, to the labor board in administering national labor relations.

Arkansas Loses
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The State of Arkansas lost in the supreme court Monday a suit to collect $281,600 back taxes from the Midland Valley Railroad company, operating in the western Arkansas coal regions.

The tribunal, sustaining a ruling by Sebastian chancery court, held that the state offered no evidence to show that so-called intangible assets of approximately 1½ million dollars upon which taxes allegedly were due, had been used for the operation of the railroad.

The court affirmed a Hempstead circuit court judgment of $3,000 for Mrs. Ida Foster against the Scott-Burr Stores corporation for injuries allegedly received when she was struck by falling articles of merchandise while working in the company's store at Hope December 10, 1937.

Akers Is on Trial for Second Time

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Herbert (Dutch) Akers, former chief of detectives of the Hot Springs police force, Monday faced trial before a federal district court jury for the second time in less than two months on a charge of conspiracy to harbor a notorious criminal while serving as peace officer in the resort city.

Already under a two-year sentence for conspiracy to harbor the outlaw Alvin Karpis, Akers went to trial on a separate indictment charging that he conspired to harbor Thomas Nathan Norris, member of Alfred (Sonny) Lamb's gang which was wiped out in a series of raids in this area during the summer of 1937.

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—The first international debate in which an Arkansas negro college will participate will be held here December 9, when the Arkansas A. M. & N. college team meets the widely-traveled Oxford-Cambridge team of England. The American educational system will be the subject of the debate.

Members of the English team are Christopher P. Myshall, graduate of Oxford University and a member of the British Labor party; and Philip R. Nookes, graduate of Cambridge University and a member of the Conservative party. Both are members of prominent English families.

They are now making a tour of 27 American colleges and universities, among them being Northwestern, Iowa State, Louisiana State and Washington. They also have appeared in nearly all of the European countries.

A. M. & N. will be represented by Earl E. Evans of Dermott and Tilman C. Cothran of Hope, both experienced debaters.

1939 Allotments Explained; Depend on Vote Dec. 10th

County Agent Oliver Describes Arrangement of Cotton Quotas

THE COUNTY TOUR

Marketing Referendum Tour to End at Fulton, Washington

Hempstead county farmers have received notice of their 1939 cotton marketing quotas, which will be in effect if cotton producers through the South approve marketing quotas in the referendum to be held on December 10, according to Oliver L. Adams, county agent.

The same method that was followed in determining cotton acreage allotments under the 1938 farm program is being used in setting up the allotments for 1939, Mr. Adams said.

"Many persons are interested in the details of how the cotton acreage allotment of an individual farm is established," Mr. Adams states. "The procedure is laid down in the law and the committees must follow this procedure. It is the same for all farmers."

All Given Allotments
In general, all farms which have produced cotton in any of the past three years receive allotments.

For farms on which the highest planted and diverted cotton acreage during the past three years is five acres or less, the farm's allotment is the highest cotton acreage planted and diverted during the 3-year period.

For farms on which the highest cotton acreage planted and diverted during the previous three years is more than five acres, the farm's allotment is based on a fixed percentage of the farm's cropland excluding the acres normally devoted to the commercial production of sugar cane for sugar, wheat, tobacco, and rice. This percentage will be the same for all farms within a county or administrative area. A small reserve will be available for farms with allotments between five and fifteen acres. No farm will have an allotment greater than the highest cotton acreage planted and diverted during the past three years.

The law provides, however, that notwithstanding the other provisions no allotment is to be less than 50 per cent of the 1937 planted and diverted cotton acreage on the farm, unless an increase to 50 per cent might cause the allotment to exceed 40 per cent of the farm's tilled land.

A small reserve acreage is available in each State for allotment to farms producing cotton in 1939 but which did not produce any cotton in three preceding years.

County Meetings
Below is the list of a series of meetings to be held on the cotton marketing referendum December 10:

Monday, December 5—Sweet Home Church, 3 p. m.; Blevins Church, 7:30 p. m.

Tuesday, December 6—Ozan Church, 10 a. m.; Sardis Church, 3 p. m.; Bingen Church 7:30 p. m.

Wednesday, December 7—Columbus Church, 1:45 p. m.; Saratoga Church 3 p. m.

Thursday, December 8—Spring Hill School House 3 p. m.; Guernsey School House 7:30 p. m.

Friday, December 9—Fulton Church, 3 p. m.; Washington School House at 7:30 p. m.

J. M. Phillips Home on S. Main, Robbed

$15 in Cash and Several Pieces of Jewelry Missing

The home of J. M. (Uncle Jimmy) Phillips, 810 South Main street, was robbed of 15 silver dollars and several pieces of jewelry, none of which has been located, Mrs. Phillips told The Star Monday.

She said robbers entered the rear door and broke open two trunks where they stole the $15 in cash and jewelry which included a string of pearl beads, four rings, a pair of gold ear rings, two gold pins, a gold bracelet and other articles.

Mrs. Phillips said police had been given a list of the stolen articles and were making an investigation, which so far has been unsuccessful, she said.

'Cherchez La Femme' Good Advice, He Says

CLEVELAND—Is the criminal right when he says "a woman was the cause of it all?"

Half the time, yes... says statistical-minded George Koestle of Cleveland. When it's not a woman, it's usually narcotics or alcohol.

Koestle, who at 73 is America's "clean of fingerprints," gained his knowledge during a half century of "mugging" suspects and tracing the mysterious whores and boys that send men to prison and the electric chair.

He has been told by many lawbreakers, pacing their barren cells, that they staged their first holdup or robbed their first store to "get something" for a woman. His investigation shows at least half of them were right.

Through the years, as Koestle filled his tell-tale filing cabinets, he learned some other things.

For instance, women who engage in crime themselves usually begin with shoplifting. Men are different. They prefer to become "specialists" in pocket picking, forgery or more dastardly purpurs.

Koestle has headed Cleveland's police identification division since the '90s. He believes environment makes the criminal. By environment he means homes where no definite line has been drawn between good and evil.

Entranced by his work, he has declined higher rank, but because of a new city retirement law, he must retire December 31. So he expects to find himself with more "free time" for his pet diversion—studying fingerprints.

President to Push Liberal Program

Will Go Forward Despite Election Reverses, He Says Monday

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—(AP)—President Roosevelt served notice on the South and the nation at large Monday that he would go forward with a "liberal" program of government despite New Deal election reverses.

Addressing the University of North Carolina student forum, he also declared that what America does or fails to do in the next few years "has far greater bearing and influences on the history of the human race for centuries to come than most of us who are here today can ever conceive."

In an implied warning to dictatorships, he asserted that the United States is "not only the largest, most powerful democracy in the whole world, but many other democracies look to us for leadership that world democracy may survive."

G. O. P. in Doubt of Liberal Strength

Some Republicans Scramble to Get Back in Conservative Ranks

By PRESTON GROVER
WASHINGTON—It is almost fun these days to cover a Republican National Committee meeting—fun for the first time in six years.

It is no fun to attend funerals, and Republican meetings for six years have been funerals, no less. Forlorn faces told forlorn stories and made forlorn predictions of party victory, when all the while everybody knew there wasn't a ray of honest optimism. Now the party faces, once so long, are positively growing.

There are other changes, too. Some of the party leaders have abandoned their effort to make the party sound liberal—that is, too liberal.

The last election looked to the Republicans like at least a partial repudiation of liberalism as defined by President Roosevelt. The net result is that some Republicans may prefer now to be known as conservative rather than liberal. Even John Hamilton, national chairman, hesitates now to call a man a liberal, willy nilly.

In 1936 everybody who had anything to do with the party was glibly described by Hamilton and other party leaders as a great liberal statesman. But somebody at the recent meeting asked Hamilton whether Harvey Jewett, Jr., of South Dakota, newly elected to the executive committee, was a liberal or a conservative.

Rolling in Tunis

TUNIS, Tunisia.—(AP)—Blood was spilled Sunday in an angry demonstration by 500 French North African protectors. Police restored order only after several skirmishes in which an undetermined number of rioters were injured.

An Italian bookstore was wrecked when the rioters broke in through the windows, seized newspapers and books and flung the minto the streets where other demonstrators tore them to shreds. Windows were smashed also in the Italian tourist office and raiders broke into offices of the Italian Line and Italian newspaper Fasciste Unione.

Fifteen persons were arrested. Police asserted their prisoners included two Italians who were armed, an Italian anarchist who arrived in Tunis recently from Spain, and the secretary of the Communist party in the capital.

Several Italian residents who appeared on the streets with Fascist insignia on their coats were forced by the crowds to remove the emblems.

Representatives of Arab delegations in the Tunisian Parliament told French authorities they would back action by the French government to prevent Tunisia from coming under Italian administration and assured the French that the Arabs would fight, if necessary, under the French flag.

Most of the demonstrators, officials said, were French, Corsicans and Tunisians.

Recovery and Progress Rest On Our Own Confidence.

Although Americans are supposed to be the greatest braggarts in the world, and often do their best to live up to the title, it just happens that one of our troubles these days is the fact that we're not cocky enough.

Perhaps you could blame it on the depression. The 1929 crash made us discover that some of our most cherished idols had feet of clay, and we went on from there to tabulate our faults in great detail, with the result that we fell into the habit of picking flaws in everything that has been done in the last half century.

This may have been good for us. A proud soul is usually all the better for a little chastening. But it did not create the best possible psychological atmosphere for recovery. The elements that go to make for recovery are intangible, and one of the most important is confidence—confidence in one's ability, in one's future, in the drive and energy and intelligence of one's fellows. A dash of the old-time American cockiness would have helped wonderfully.

So it is proper to call attention to remarks made the other day by William O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber Company, on his return from a tour of Europe.

America may have her troubles, says Mr. O'Neil, but compared with Europe she is practically next door to the golden gate. The best labor in the world and the best employers in the world are to be found in America; they operate in the world's richest market, and between them they maintain the world's highest standard of living.

Which leads Mr. O'Neil to his next point.

"Some politicians," he says, "have tried to persuade us that America succeeds because of its natural resources and because it is a comparatively new country. Go to Europe and you will see the fallacy of this. Relatively there are more natural resources in Rumania than there are in the United States. And that is a truth it wouldn't hurt us to remember.

We have had a rich continent to exploit, to be sure, but that isn't the whole answer and we do ourselves a disservice by pretending that it is. Our great advantages are human—our system of government, our social and economic organization, the vision and ability of our business leaders, the intelligence and ambition of our labor. It is on these things that America's greatness has been built in the past; it is on them that its recovery from this depression will be built.

So it would help if we could regain some of that old-time cockiness. For recovery and progress rest, after all, on confidence. We don't create confidence by telling ourselves that we're just lucky. We can create it—and we have every right to do so—by examining the reasons for past success and doing a little exultant chest-thumping once more.

Caribou—Vanishing American

THE long-horned wandering caribou is slipping from the North American scene. At one time, say the scientists, the caribou grazed along the swamps and glades as far south as what is now New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and as far west as Iowa, Utah, and Colorado.

Today two types of caribou exist in North America, the northern type, living largely in the Arctic area and the woodland caribou, confined chiefly to the forests of eastern Canada. The northern caribou may be found also as far south as the mountainous areas of the northwestern states.

There are many types of the caribou, but all are surprisingly alike in habits and appearance, differing only in color and size. Some are less migratory than others. The caribou generally is a wandering animal.

The woodland caribou of eastern Canada once abounded in northern New York and New England, but today faces a hard fight for survival. In winter they gather in large herds of several hundred and dig through the snow for berries and leaves and lichens. In the summer they are constantly on the move, mainly to escape flies. In the Arctic regions the caribou is the principal dependence of the Indian tribes. The barren-ground caribou or the northern type is perfectly suited to its environment. The peculiar structure of its hoofs, for one thing, which have sharp edges, give it a remarkable sureness of foot on rough frozen ground. It attains a remarkable speed and is able to subsist for long periods on little food.

Science Explains Capillary Reaction Which Cause Ordinary Hives

Urticari is the name given to the with light, physical exertion, or emotional excitement. Some people believe that the urticaria following physical exertion or emotional excitement is the result of increased heat developed in the body following these activities.

Some time ago it was established that urticaria may also occur on the body as a result of sensitivity to heat or to cold, or sometimes associated day, or when he was in any other manner exposed to heat. He would get relief by taking a cold shower bath or by going into the icebox of the dairy where he worked. Whenever he got excited or angry, he also developed a skin eruption.

In a skin clinic in New York investigators were recently able to observe 15 people who had similar symptoms on exposure to heat. In the case of woman, the eruptions came when they cooked in front of a fire or over a cook stove. Two patients had the attacks when they ate hot food, and 12 believed that their attacks came on when they indulged in games dancing or swimming.

Incidentally, many of these patients were also sensitive to other substances, seven of the misperceiving with hives when eating certain foods, and one having hives whenever he took aspirin.

Some tests were done to find out what brought on these hives. It was found, for example, that when one leg of such a sensitive person was put in hot water, he would get blisters on other parts of the body but not on the leg that was in the water. This would indicate that the urticaria was not caused by the direct heat on the skin.

Some tests were made in other ways, leading finally to the view that there are several different types of cases. It seems possible that excessive cooling of the skin results in reduction of the pressure in the very small blood vessels, called the capillaries, and that this reduction of the pressure in the capillaries results in the fact that cold will prevent blisters in people who have sensitive to heat. In such cases when the person who has prevented the blisters by exposure to cold, returns to a hot room, the blisters may suddenly appear. The reason for this is that the heat relaxes the blood vessels and thus permits the chemical substances to be released in such amounts as to produce the reaction in the skin.

Thus modern science finds an explanation for conditions which have long been a mystery and for manifestations which have sometimes been called miraculous.

Ready to Serve

The famous criminal lawyer had won a shockingly bad case by eloquence and trickery, and a rival lawyer said to him, bitterly:

"Is there any case so low, so foul, so vilely crooked and shameful that you'd refuse it?"

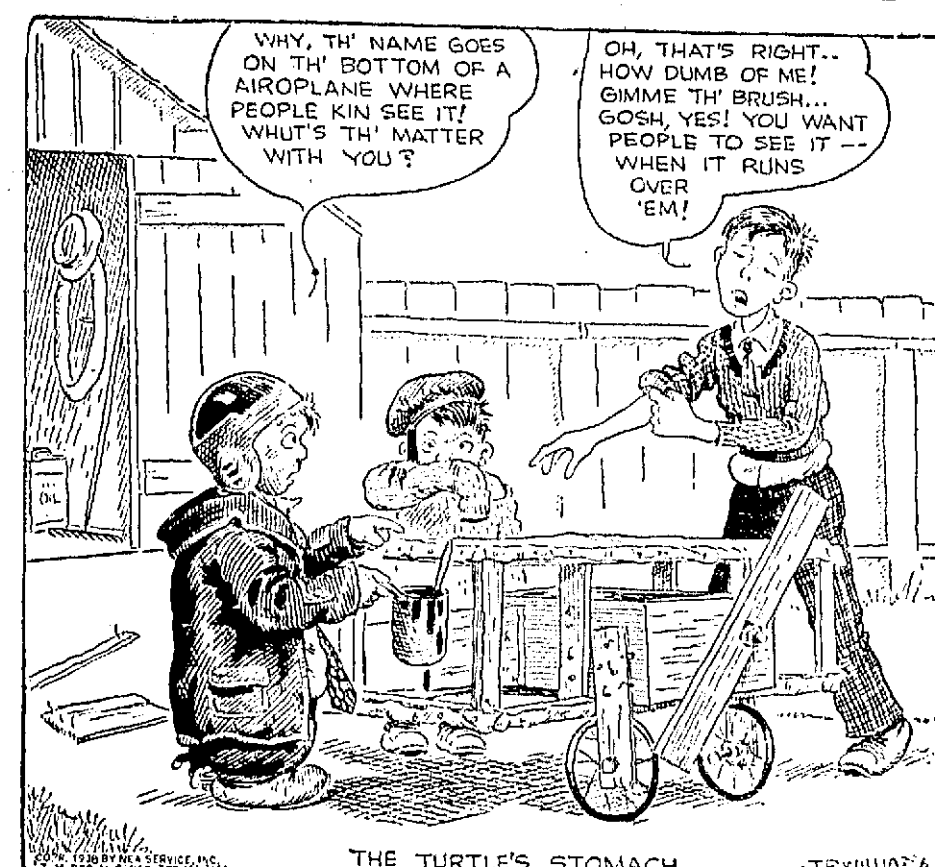

"Well, I don't know," answered the other with a smile. "What have you been doing now?"

Another impediment to marriage nowadays is the increasing difficulty of supporting the government and a wife on one income.

A Book a Day By Bruce Catton

Gambling History
of America

You would expect gambling be something of an American invention, running as it has through our national life from Colonial days to the present.
But gambler that he is, the American has never conceived a single major game of chance. The ideas have all come from the Old World.

They've come and the United States has made the most of them. Herbert Asbury, who revels in the chronicling of the nation's bad habits, tells the whole engrossing story in a book
as fast moving as the roulette wheel and Co., $3.50.

Gambling got its big start in America says Mr. Asbury, through the port of New Orleans. Here faro and poker and craps and the lottery thrived, eventually to spread across the continent with the nation itself.

It spread along the Mississippi,
to New York and Washington, westward to Chicago, into the cow towns, the railroad boom towns, and into California with the forty-niners. Out of it evolved such national expressions as "square deal," "stool pigeon,"
"hook," an dplaying both ends against the middle."

Richard Canfield, who Mr. Asbury says was the greatest gambler of them all, amassed $13,000,000 before he returned. Today gambling is a form of racketeering, as Mr. Asbury tells it.—

Has Gold-Plated Machine the Shah Didn't Want

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—(AP)—Bender
A. Chawthon, a Jacksonville resident, has an ancient gold-plated phonograph
Thomas A. Edison is said to have manufactured for the Shah of Persia 50 years ago.

The Shah sent a phonograph order to Edison in the early days of the talking machine and through a misunderstanding two gold-plated de-luxe type gramophones were made and sent to him instead of one. The Persian ruler promptly returned one.

Edison made a present of the returned machine to John H. Mackey, a friend and associate, who later settled in Jacksonville. Mackey died a year ago and Chawthon obtained the phonograph from his estate.

Nearly two thirds of all the lamb eaten in the United States is consumed burgh, an area which grows less than five per cent of the country's sheep.

CHAPTER XXV

"ANOTHER man's wife!" The words drummed in Judy's brain. She stared at Dwight. Had he actually said that? Did he realize what he was saying? Why, that meant that Cary Tennant
had dared—that Dwight had seen him, kissing Marvel.

She remembered the time she
and Diane Bell had glimpsed Marvel and Cary Tennant in that downtown San Diego restaurant.
Cary's hands had been so close to Marvel's, almost caressing her fingers. The smile that had shone in Marvel's eyes—the unaccountable,
the incredible air of flirtation
there had been between the two of them. She and Diane had called themselves cats. Judy remembered.
Cats for being suspicious. And yet—they had been right. Except that then Marvel hadn't been Mrs.
Dwight Campbell yet. She had merely been engaged. But to be engaged is almost the same . . .

Anew, Judy seemed to hear the voice of Cary Tennant, as she had heard it that night at Marvel's housewarming. She and Jack Hanley, standing close together. "Mar-vel's just having a little fling," Cary had said. "It won't last long."
He had been jeering. With such an attitude toward her marriage, with so obvious a disrespect for her Navy husband, no wonder he made love to Marvel!

D W I G H T was saying, "I couldn't make Marvel see it my way, Judy. She kept insisting that she must be allowed to keep her old friends. They understood her, she said. My friends were impossible.
She hated them! She said she hated the Navy! And I always knew—I couldn't help seeing—that in Marvel's old crowd, a little philandering doesn't matter. They expect it. It's the only fun they have! None of them work—more money than they know what to do with— Why, Judy, that party on Cary Tennant's yacht was—wasn't decent!"

Judy knew what he meant.
Cocktails to excess, and laughter to excess. Wild dancing—heedless gaiety. Today we live and tomorrow—the deuce with what happens! All she could find to say was, "I'm sorry."

"That might have blown over,"
he said thoughtfully, as if he were speaking his thoughts aloud,
counting them over more to himself than to her. "We might still have made a go of it if it weren't for all her money. Money! And I thought money might be a help
. . . She wanted to buy Paris clothes, travel in the most luxurious way. Whenever I said I couldn't afford a three hundred dollar gown, or twenty-five dollar hats, she always flung back that I couldn't stop her from spending her money. She was used to running around—extra fare trains, the smartest nightclubs, the right resorts in the right seasons—it made me feel cheap because I couldn't go, or pay her way."

"Yes, I see. A girl who has been accustomed to so much money—it would be hard for her to live on a Navy budget."

"Yes, I know. But just the same—" He hitched in the seat.
His face was drawn. He said at last, tiredly, "Well, it's over.
Marvel left me no doubt about that. She's going to Rome. Probably in Cary Tennant's private car!"

"Maybe I'll blow over," Judy said, trying to sound cheerful.
"Maybe Marvel will change her mind." She asked herself, inwardly why she was bothering to comfort Dwight, why she was defending his disloyal wife. Marvel Hastings wouldn't have defended
Judy.

"In a way," said Dwight, setting
his jaw, "I don't want it to blow over. All these scenes, and so many things interfering with my work on the ship, are making hash of my career. She came right on board, and she—we—"

FOR a moment they both sat in silence, and then he said heavily, "If she wants a divorce,
I won't stop her. I can start over.
She wasn't cut out to be a Navy wife."

"I'm so sorry—" Judy said. Her hands were tightly clasped.
He turned toward her with weary appeal. "I don't know why I—I thought I could ever make her over. People never make other people over, do they? You're a typical Navy girl. Everything a man in the service needs. I knew that. Yes—" Then he said, "I was a fool. I—I didn't realize that —I hurt you, too. I didn't mean to. But I—I was so blind."

"No," said Judy in a strangled tone. "No, Dwight. You—you never hurt me. You mustn't think
so. I—I'm fine!"

His hand touched hers. "Don't,
Judy. I know. I tried to pretend to myself that all those dates of ours were only friendly. I told myself a man can't love two girls, and I was crazy about Marvel. But it was an infatuation. All the time I knew you were sweet and good and what I wanted. But I couldn't rid myself of the crazy

way I wanted her."

So had it been with herself, she knew, with sinking heart. Jack Hanley was kind. He was sweet to her. Good. Straightforward.
Everything she ought to want. But she had never been able to rid herself of the crazy, crazy way she wanted Dwight. Even sitting here beside him—even listening to his voice speak of Marvel—

"You shouldn't be talking to me like this," she managed to whisper.

His eyes were very honest. "Why shouldn't I?" he demanded. "It isn't too late to make things right.
Is it, Judy? Is it?"

His own eyes dropped before his.

"Yes, it is," she said in a low voice.

"No, it's not!" He was sure!
"You've been hurt, I treated you terribly. But I know that before I told you about her, you must have thought I—that I—cared about you. That's true, isn't it?
Oh, it must be true! You were so white about it. So brave and clean! You're a thoroughbred.
The way you took my change of heart proved it. But Judy—" Now he was making a little hesitant motion toward her. "Judy, we can still pick up the pieces. Salvage a little happiness for ourselves."

Her heart leaped, denying the pride she ought to strengthen herself with. But her pride was there.
It was part of her. It was an on-raged pride, hurting bitterly. She said swiftly, "What makes you think I want to pick up the pieces, Dwight? No—" She pushed at him gently. "Don't put your arms around me. You're so sure I've cried over you! Let me tell you—I haven't! Let me tell you something else you don't know! Now she was triumphant, glad to be hurting him, glad to be avenging her pride. His white, stricken face only made her speak more hurriedly. "I've always been good friends with Jack Hanley. You must know—four years he's been the dearest friend I had. But I guess you didn't know, Dwight,
that I—that I'm engaged to him!"

She looked into his eyes steadily. Her will, strong as steel, forced the tumult inside her to
ebb. To leave nothing but this sweet feeling of having paid him back for everything he had done
to make her suffer. "I'm going to marry Jack Hanley, Dwight. We're to be married just as soon as he gets out of the hospital!"

How To Relieve Misery of Your CHEST COLD

If you are suffering from a miserable chest cold,
try this: Massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on chest and cover with warm cloth.
VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief—two ways at once.
(1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated
vapors.
This poultice-vapor action loosens
phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion.
Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Youngsters Provide Excitement
Naturally the most exciting ele-

licanism is the influx of youngish members who as yet are not overshadowed by the elder members with party connections predating the Hoover era.
But so perverse is our own disposition that we checked the list to learn just how many of the old horses were still

It develops that about a third of the executive committee and a third of the 90-odd members on the larger membe pointed out as representing the "solid conservative" elements which battered the party for many a year.

In actual membership there are far

Guernsey Teams to Clash With Patmos

Three Basketball Games Are Scheduled at Patmos Tuesday Night

GUERNSEY—The Guernsey High School Blue Jays will be gunning for their fifth consecutive victory in the Hempstead county basketball conference which opened on Friday, November 11, when they go to Patmos, Tuesday night, December 6.

This team promises to be a battle in as much as neither team has lost a tilt in the current county race. Then, too, there is a keen feeling of friendly rivalry existing between the two schools, probably because the principals of the two institutions once coached at the other's present school.

Anyway the Blue Jays are out to wipe out three stinging defeats, three very close ones, at that, which they suffered on the Patmos court, last year, set-backs that are still rankling in the craws of the Jay Birds. If they can hang up a fifth scalp, the Guernsey lads, after having already downed Fulton, Spring Hill, Washington, and Columbus will really feel like cawing and rightly so, for their opponents boast one of the strongest squads in the history of the Patmos schools as well as the strongest cage outfit in the local conference at the present time, the club that must be disposed of before any other team can possibly hope to win the county championship this season.

The second game of the evening will see the girls' teams of the two schools in action. This contest is expected to be a close one also. Last year the south county sextet had little or no trouble in defeating the Guernsey girls, but this season they are without the services of two or three of their stellar players; therefore the Lady Blue Jays also expect to taste sweet revenge Tuesday night. In their first game of the current season, they dropped a fast game to the Fulton girls; but in their second county fray they beat Spring Hill, a sextet that has already defeated the Patmos girls this year.

In a third and last game of the night the two junior boys' outfits will furnish the entertainment for the spectators. aPatmos juniors have the edge on the Guernsey lands as they swamped a Spring Hill team that in turn overran the Junior Birds at a later date. However, the visitors are primed for a real battle. In their five games to date, the Guernsey juniors have won four.

Chesterfield Has All-America Team

Eddie Dooley Climaxes Football Series With Selection

A week before Eric Tipton of Duke pointed his team to its 7-0 victory over Pitt, Eddie Dooley, the famous football forecaster and commentator, who has been broadcasting weekly for Chesterfield Cigarettes, picked Tipton for the Chesterfield 1938 All-America football team.

That Dooley's picking of the Duke star on his ace team was fully justified, was amply borne out by Duke's prompt bid and acceptance to the Rose Bowl after its remarkable unbeaten, untied and unscored-on season.

Chesterfield's All-America football team, as chosen by Dooley and announced recently over his nation-wide hookup, is being mailed by coaches and critics as one of the most representative teams of the year. The team was chosen by Dooley in collaboration with more than one hundred leading coaches.

No eleven of previous years packs more line power and scoring punch, more hard running backs and aggressive forwards than the team Dooley chose for Chesterfield. It is made up of eleven players all of whom have performed with rare distinction in their respective positions all season.

Dooley's team is as follows:

Ends—Earl Brown of Notre Dame and W. Roland Young of Oklahoma.

Tackles—Steve Maronic of North Carolina and Francis Tweddel of Minnesota.

Guards—Sid Roth of Cornell and Ralph Heikkinen of Michigan.

Center—Ki Aldrich of Texas Christian.

Quarterback—Bob MacLeod of Dartmouth.

Halfbacks—Vic Botari of California and Eric Tipton of Duke.

Fullback—Marshall Goldberg of Pittsburgh.

--Get along Little Giftie

Mother used to have one fascinating bureau drawer. In it were numbers of scented tissue-wrapped parcels. Gifts. Not gifts she had selected. Gifts she had received — beribboned, ornate, useless. Mother kept them all year. At Christmas she got them out — and sent them to others. Once in a while the cards got mixed and mother and her friends bowed coldly to each other in great chagrin for some time afterwards.

Nowadays mother's bureau drawer is practically empty. The little doggies that changed hands every Christmas no longer pass along between mother and her cronies.

Advertising pages have given all of them a new view of what's new — wanted — usable in the way of Christmas presents. They report things that are fun to purchase — fun to give — and fun to get. Gifts that stay put — because people really want them. Gifts that actually cost less than the old-fashioned boomerang present. Why not consult the pages of this publication? See what's new — and wanted — this year by your friends too.

New Low Rent Aid to City's Problem

Fort Wayne Builds Houses to Rent for $2.50 Per Week

By the AP Feature Service
FORT WAYNE, Ind.—With new houses that rent for $2.50 a week, built on lots acquired for $1 each, the Fort Wayne Housing Authority hopes to do away with slums.

The first houses are up—and occupied. Work is being hurried on others. If the first project of 50 dwellings meets no serious obstacles, a second project of 150 units will be started.

The houses are brand new, prefabricated by WPA workers in a low-rent factory. The sections are trucked to the sites, where other WPA workers erect them. The WPA figures each house costs about $1,300, of which $900 is for materials. Labor makes up most of the balance.

Sites for these houses are acquired from owners of vacant lots and lots containing old shacks. The owners have been paying taxes for years, while waiting for a chance to dispose of the lots.

Fort Wayne's Housing Authority pays $1 for each lot and agrees to pay all costs of title search and transfer. Also it promises to reconvey the lot to the original owner for $1 any time he finds a better use for it. The houses can be dismantled in 24 hours and moved to another site.

Each house is designed for a family of four. One room, 20x12 feet, serves as living room, dining room and kitchen. Besides this there are a bathroom and two bedrooms.

The city housing authority, which holds title to the homes, is tax-exempt, is non-profit, and possesses powers of eminent domain. It gets its running expenses from the city and is in essence an agency of the city.

Sanitary Homes Wanted
The idea was born in the spring of 1936 when the state planning board joined in a campaign to provide better and more sanitary homes for unfortunate families. The first step was to enlist the aid of Purdue university in experimenting with a prefabricated, low-cost house.

When Purdue's model dwelling was ready, it was erected in an Indianapolis slum area. Last May, William B. F. Hall, chairman of the Fort Wayne Housing Authority, asked the FHA in Washington if Fort Wayne could build houses like the Purdue model in its slum-clearance program.

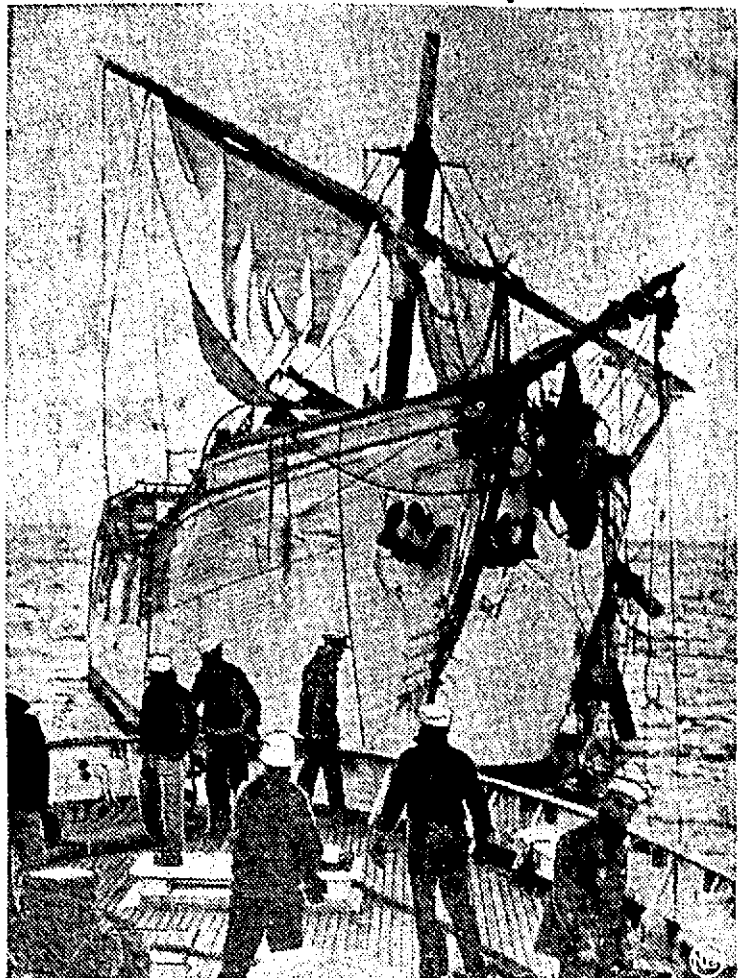

In that query Hall attributed to "sub-standard housing conditions" much of Fort Wayne's relief costs, rent relief and municipal aid to the homeless. He said a large share of the city's public health costs and its bill for food, fuel and clothing of relief clients was traceable to poor housing.

His contention was that the relief group needed shelter for a maximum of $12 a month—without electric stoves, fancy kitchen cabinets and other gadgets.

Plan Was Accepted
The FHA liked his idea. It put two men to work to see what could be developed. One was Frank Watson, who had helped design Purdue's model low-cost house, the other J. Stanley Young. Between them, they worked out the plans for the simple but attractive Fort Wayne house.

Construction is as simple as the house's design. For the floor a 4-inch concrete slab "floats" on a gravel fill. To this floor are secured 35 phenol-resin bonded plywood panels of identical size to supply exterior walls and partitions.

After WPA workers erect the houses, electricians, painters, roofers and plumbers add the finishing touches.

The rent-collecting job is assumed by the Associated Charities of Fort Wayne, but management of the properties is kept by the housing authority. Hall says it may be possible to reduce the rents from $2.50 to $2 weekly after 200 of the houses are erected and occupied.

Political Setup Is Like That 1912

A m a z i n g Parallel of Names and Circumstances Studied

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON.—There is an amazing parallel of names and circumstances between the present political hour and 1912; and some possibility that the names and circumstances will continue parallel, or at least continue related.

In 1912 William Howard Taft was President and candidate for re-election. Now his son, Robert Taft of Ohio, is freshly elected United States Senator and suddenly given Presidential glamor.

In 1912, Champ Clark of Illinois was speaker of the House and a Presidential aspirant who was defeated for his party's nomination by an abrupt last-minute shift of votes to Woodrow Wilson. A generation later his son, Senator Bennett Champ Clark, is freshly re-elected and, like Taft, given Presidential glamor.

In those days an important left wing liberal was the elder Senator Bob LaFollette. Now his son, young Bob, has his place in the Senate as an important left wing liberal.

Rooseveltian Counterpart

In the White House is a Roosevelt, who, to a certain degree, has his counterpart in the earlier Theodore Roosevelt. The 1938 Roosevelt has just suffered something of a setback in his effort to build around him a solid liberal party. The earlier Roosevelt in 1912 made an even more exciting effort, going to the extent of splitting the Republican party wide open, pulling the Progressive elements with him. It permitted election of Woodrow Wilson who drew a decided minority of the total popular vote.

There has been talk that the 1938 Roosevelt might not hesitate to split his party in 1940 in order to carry into office the part of it he considers progressive.

Overseas there is another parallel, which may bring on conditions having a tremendous bearing on the type of President this country wishes in power. In 1912, it was Kaiser Wilhelm who was looked upon as the disturbing influence, with his demands for a "place in the sun" to be had at the price of rivalry with Britain for naval supremacy, and rivalry with half of Continental Europe for command of the land.

Hitler Furnishes Parallel

In 1938, Fuehrer Hitler, dictator of a later Germany, is pushing toward the east, like Wilhelm, and is demanding a place in the sun. He demands return of the colonies which Germany obtained years ago by Kaiser Wilhelm's bluff and bluster.

It is a great game, this paralleling business, but should not be carried too far, nor should too much be read into it. Wisely or not, this country is presuming that within the next few years it will have to fight, or at least be ready to fight. No such thought troubled 1912 America. It rested secure in its feeling of complete isolation from foreign fighting—and built nothing for fighting or threatening.

The bear was setting in a rocking chair in front of the stove rubbing its elbow with liniment.—Charles Huber, Bangor, Me., describing a most intelligent bear that escaped from a trap and invaded a cabin.

Negro Vocational Meeting Held Here

1939 District Judging Contest Will Be Held in Hope Next April

The fourteen vocational agricultural departments of negro schools of Southwest Arkansas held its annual district meeting at Yerger High School Saturday, December 3, at 10 a. m. The report of the National Vocational Judging meet which was held in Savannah, Ga., was made.

It was unanimously decided that the 1939 district judging contest will be held in Hope in April at the Yerger High School vocational department under the supervision of J. A. Harris, agricultural instructor and the N. F. A. chapter.

The predominating theme of the meeting was to make the 1939 district meeting the best one of the several district meetings of the state. Vocational agricultural instructors present were: P. J. Manly, president, Camden; I. W. Harris, secretary, treasurer, Clow; R. D. Cesser, Arkadelphia; M. Mall, McNabb; E. M. Brown, Magnolia; Chester White and J. A. Harris, Hope.

Take Calotabs to Help Nature Throw off Colds

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed. How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleaning the intestinal tract of any virus-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are direct to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which may be needed in the treatment of colds. Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)
